Opinion | Rana Ayyub - wide on Saturday May 9, 2015 While Salman Khan and Sanjay Dutt can be indicted in two different cases, there is a similar thread that runs through very public trials for them, says Rana Ayyub. Bollywood actor Salman Khan is well known for his on and off tussle with the law. Since the famous hit-and-run poaching event at the Blackbuck event, Salman Khan seems to be fed up with taking risks. In 1998, almost 20 years ago, Salman Khan, along with Saif Ali Khan, Taboo, Sonali Bendre and Neelam were accused of killing blackbucks, an endangered species protected under the Wildlife Protection Act near the villages of Kankani, Jodhpur, Rajasthan. The Bollywood actor was in Rajasthan along with his co-stars for filming Hum Saath Saath Hain. A Jodhpur court on April 5 sentenced Salman Khan in a 20-year blackbuck poaching case and handed him two years in prison. Salman's lawyer will now petition on bail. However, the court acquitted Safa Ale Khan, Taboo, Sonali Bendre and Neelam. O case: During filming, Salman Khan went on an alleged hunting session with his co-stars and was accused of killing two blackbucks in Kankani on the night of the October 1-2, 1998. The killing angered the Bishnoi community, who protect wildlife with fervor, and filed a complaint against the actors and locals involved in the shooting. He was also accused of keeping his hand with an expired license and was charged under the Weapons Act. Salman Khan was later acquitted in a gun case by a court. There were two more cases against Salman Khan for allegedly killing two Chinkaras (Indian gazelle) in the Bhawad area and another in Mathania both in Rajasthan. But the actor was later acquitted by Rajasthan Supreme Court in 2016 for poaching chinkaras. Prosecutors challenged his acquittal in a higher court, which is currently pending in SC. (With entrances from Dev Ankur Wadhawan) OPINION: Is The Leader of Congress Assisting Salman Khan in the Blackbuck Case? A Major: Salman Khan Talks About His 2006 Prison Experience By: Express Web Desk | New Delhi | Updated: September 27, 2019 12:25:26 PM Salman Khan was accused of killing two blackbucks while filming in Jodhpur in 1998. Bollywood actor Salman Khan on Friday scheduled to appear in court in Jodhpur after he was summoned in a 1998 Blackbuck poaching case. The actor applied to be convicted by a lower court, which sentenced him to five years in prison for killing two blackbucks during filming in 1998. After the actor did not appear today, the Jodhpur District and Sessions Court set December 19 as the next hearing date. Nishant Bora, one of Khan's lawyers, said there was no need to appear and that the court did not insist on it. Bora, however, informed the court of the risk of death, and raised concerns about the legal and law enforcement situation every time the actor appeared at premises. During a hearing on July 4 this year, Session Court Judge Chandra Kumar Songara ordered Khan to appear in court on September 27, otherwise his bail plea could be waived, PTI reported. The actor did not appear before from May last year, when he was granted bail. Khan recently received death sentence by a gangster named Garry Shooter, who belongs to the Lawrence Bishnoi gang. The threat was made on a Facebook group by a student union member of the University of Punjab SOPU (Student Organization of the University of Punjab). The post, written in Hindi, reads: Salman may think you can get away from Indian law, but the Bishnoi community and the Sodu party have given you a death sentence. You are guilty in the court of Sodu. Salaam sahid da nu; Respect for girls; Save the animals; Avoid drugs & help the poor; Sukha kahlon Garry. A photo of actor Dabangg was also attached to the post. After the post went viral, police launched an investigation into the matter. Police are on alert. We also gave proper security to the celebrity when he came here earlier for an audition. An investigation has been launched, DCP Dharmendra Yadav told IANS. Prosecutor Mahipal Bishnoi said earlier that the court had orally asked Khan's lawyer to appear in court at the last hearing. At that time, the barrister requested that the actor be released from the obligation to appear, after which the court asked the actor to appear before him because he had been absent from the beginning of the hearing on his plea. In February, the Jodhpur Supreme Court issued notices to actors Saif Ali Khan, Sonali Bendre, Neelam Kothari and Taboo after the Rajasthan government challenged their acquittal in a blackbuck poaching case by a local court. While Saif, Sonali, Neelam, Taboo and Dushyant were acquitted in the case on April 5 last year, Salman Khan was convicted under Section 51 of the Wildlife (Protection) Act and received a five-year prison sentence along with a fine of Rs 10,000.
